YOU ALL KNOW, I GIVE THE BEST ADVICE! JUST TRY IT!
IT'S A MYSTERY HOW SHE DOES IT.
Dear Cheryl

BY SARA ALGASE

Dear Cheryl,
My friend told me that she met a boy at the golf club and he gave her his phone number. She said she'll bring me to meet the boy next time they get together. She always phones him. I'm not sure if she's telling the truth or not. What can I do to find out?
-- Wondering, British Columbia, Canada

Dear Wondering,
So you're not sure if your friend is telling the truth about her new boyfriend, huh? Well, there's only one way out: The next time she's on the phone with him, quickly grab the phone out of her hand and say hello to this boy. If there's a real guy at the other end of the line, then you know your friend's telling the truth. If you hear, "If you'd like to make a call, please hang up and dial again", then you'll know she's made it all up. Now isn't that simple? -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I want to be a model in magazines and/or commercials. Even though I haven't asked my parents, I'm pretty sure their answer will be no. How can I convince them to say yes?
-- Hopeful, Oakland, CA

Dear Hopeful,
Ask your parents again. Sometimes parents get a little worn down if you ask them for something several times, and eventually they say yes. Try asking them when they're in a good mood, after their morning coffee or a good nap. (Don't ask them when they come home from work). Give them a cookie and hopefully they'll weaken and let you be a model. How could they keep an aspiring Christy or Naomi from becoming a star?
--Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
This guy in my school has a huge crush on me. He's the grossest guy I've ever seen. What should I do to get him off my back and get other guys who are totally hot to like me?
-- Desperate & Grossed Out, Cleveland, GA

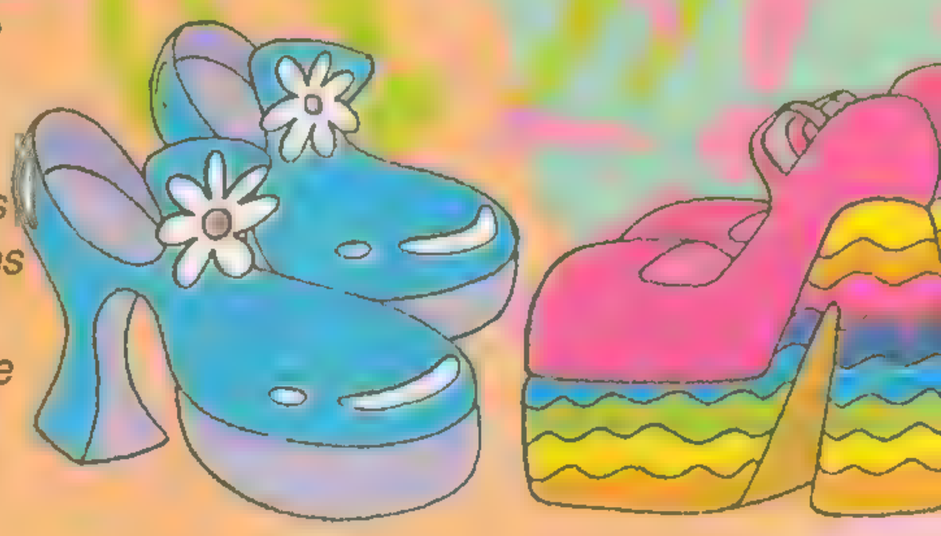
Dear Desperate & Grossed Out,
There's no reason you should hang out with a guy just because he has a crush on you. Tons of guys have crushes on me, but do you see me hanging out with every one of them? No way. Make sure a guy has three qualifications before you go out with him: His socks match, he washes his hair more than once a week, and flies don't cluster around him because of his bad smell! About attracting those hot guys, have you tried changing your nail polish? -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
There are these rude girls in my class. All of the boys notice them and not me. -- Lost, Ontario, Canada

Dear Lost,
Those boys may be noticing those rude girls because they're just too loud for the boys to notice anything else. You don't have to be rude or loud to attract boys. You just need to be able to flirt really well. Try fluttering your eyelashes at the guys, smiling a million-dollar smile or blushing. (Blushing can take a little practice.) You can send messages without saying a word. -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I really like this boy, Tim. He's cuter than cute, but he likes my other friend. I'm jealous. What can I do to get Tim to like me more? -- Clueless, Quad Cities, IL

Dear Clueless,
The girl with the biggest shoes wins! Now that platform shoes are in style, make sure you've got one up on your friend by wearing clunkier, brighter, bigger shoes than her. Who says friends can't fight over a guy? It sure keeps Betty & Veronica on their toes. I say, go shoe shopping. -- Cheryl



Dear Cheryl,
We're best friends and we like identical twin boys. Our problem is that we can't tell them apart so we don't know who to ask out. What should we do?
-- Jennifer & Suzy, Nova Scotia, Canada

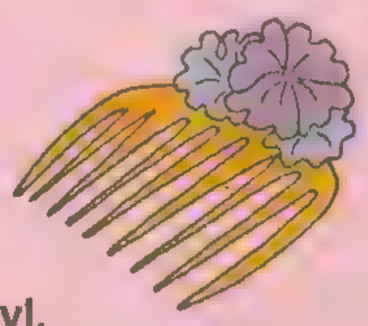
Dear Jennifer & Suzy,
If it's too confusing to know who is who, simply call them pet names. "Cutey," "Honey-Bunny," "handsome," or "Man of My Dreams" should work just fine. Then you won't have to remember which one is which. And if talking about the other twin, you don't have to use his name, just say "your brother." He'll know who you're referring to. If you get to the point where you're actually dating them, you can always ask them to wear cute little ID tags attached to their ears. Just kidding! (Ask them to wear different color clothing. One brother always wears green, etc.) -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I've always wanted a boyfriend but I never got one. Sometimes I feel like I do but I don't. What should I do?
-- Single, New Rochelle, NY

Dear Single,
It sounds like you're still not sure whether you want a boyfriend or not. That's okay. If you're not ready to date yet, you can always go shopping, which is just as fun, and you get neat stuff, too. Sometimes it's fun not to be tied down. You can concentrate on important stuff like hair accessories, local school gossip, and your studies. Plus, you can flirt with as many guys as you want. -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I like a boy in my class but my best friend likes him, too. What should I do? -- Kate, Nashville, TN

Dear Kate,
It's up to you and your friend to settle this in a rational, intelligent fashion. I suggest you flip a coin. Heads, he's yours, tails, you have to let your friend get him. And if you lose, suggest you play double or nothing till you win!
-- Cheryl



Dear Cheryl,
I want new clothes but I don't know what to buy. My eyes are brown and my hair is brownish-black. In the summer, my hair turns a little red or gold. I'm a little tall for my age. I have only one mini T-shirt. What do I need to buy and what color? -- What to Wear, St. Paul, MN

Dear What to Wear,
I always say: Wear what you like. If you like what you're wearing, then you'll feel attractive and confident and that confidence helps add to your look. If you like mini T-shirts, get a few more. But don't forget to bundle up. No one looks attractive with a runny nose! -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I have an older brother who lives with me. He's such a pest. Please give me some advice. -- Shontae, Chicago, IL

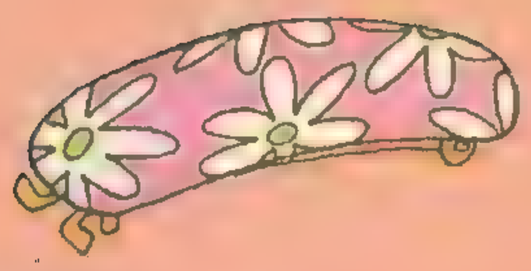
Dear Shontae,
Big brothers can be a pain. Don't you hate how they leave their wet towels everywhere? And those smelly sneakers, yuck! But look on the bright side. Your brother might have his driver's license soon, and then he can chauffeur you and your friends back and forth to the mall. And maybe he even has one or two semi-attractive friends you can flirt with. -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I really like this boy at school. One of my friends told me he likes me too, but every one of the boys in my class thinks he's dumb. Please help.
-- In Love, Omaha, NE

Dear In Love,
What do you care what those boys think of this other boy? A boy wouldn't know a cute guy if he hit him in the face. Ask your girl friends if they think this guy is cute. That's whose opinion really counts, and of course, your own. -- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
I broke up with my boyfriend two months ago and I still haven't gotten over him. I need to attract more boys. But how? -- Confused, Cincinnati, OH

Dear Confused,
A good way to attract boys is to be popular, rich and beautiful. But not everyone can be all those things. In that case, you need a back-up plan. Here are two handy suggestions for attracting boys: 1) If you have a dog, walk him in heavily boy-populated areas. Boys will stop and pet your dog and then you can charm them with your sparkling conversation. (Make sure your dog doesn't bite. This could deter many boys). 2) Talk about sports. Most boys like anything to do with sports. If you play sports, they'll really like you, and you'll get to wear those cute little uniforms!
--Cheryl

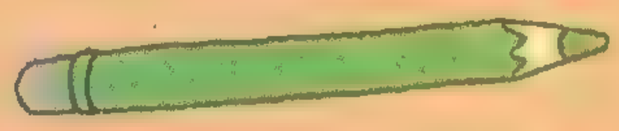


Dear Cheryl,
I have a major crush on this boy. His name is Matt. But he doesn't like me. What can I do to make him like me?
-- Cassandra, Monroe, MI

Dear Cassandra,
First ask yourself, is your hair dry and lifeless? Do you have split ends? That could be the problem. Maybe this Matt-person wants a girl with fluffy hair (like mine)! I suggest a deep- conditioning hair treatment. And if that doesn't work, find a guy who doesn't mind a little split ends.
-- Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,
My parents won't let me dress fashionable like you. I feel bad about it.
-- Unfashionable, Santa Rosa, CA

Dear Unfashionable,
Isn't it just so tiresome when your parents try to limit your fashion experience? But don't fret. Eventually you'll grow up and then you can wear whatever you want. In the meantime, see if you can get away with some funky rings or outrageously cute barrettes.
--Cheryl



Dear Cheryl,
There's a boy at school named Brendan who likes me a lot. He sits by me at lunch. He acts like I'm his girlfriend and he puts his arm around my shoulder. Why does he do that?
-- Kathleen, Center Point, IA

Dear Kathleen,
It sounds like this guy wants to be your "honey." Decide if you want that. Is this guy nice and sweet? More importantly, will he pay when you go out on dates? If you like him, tell him he's got to take you somewhere fancy and buy you seafood if he wants to be your boyfriend. And if you don't like him, keep changing where you sit at lunch, so by the time he finally finds you, lunchtime will be over. -- Cheryl
